

The Daily Press

Wednesday, March 29th, 10 A.M.

Second Edition.

We were in error yesterday in our account of the attack on a policeman on the Pak-fu-lun Road, in saying that the poor fellow's limb was protruding when he was found.

The true statement of the case is as follows.—

A policeman was posted on the old Chinese burial ground on the Pak-fu-lun Road to prevent any native burials taking place there, and a Chinaman in a perfect state of nudity, and with his hands, which he had pinched previously, bound behind his back, stripped and robbed of all he possessed, at the same time he assumed the appearance that if he would accomplish his short distance he could point out the thieves. This he did, and the nude victim pointed out three men who had robbed him. The policeman saluted them all by their names, which the three men, one accord suddenly turned about and stoned him with stones, inflicting five very serious wounds on his body.

The robbers escaped up the hill and the naked man ran off for assistance which arriving, the constable was conveyed to the Hospital where he now lies in a precarious state.

A man has since been captured who is supposed to be one of the robbers, but the police man is unable as yet to identify him.

A man about to enter a Pawnbroker's shop was attacked by a Chinese detective who sent him off a gold locket for pledge, made him prisoner and conveyed him to the station where it was discovered that the locket was once attached to Dr. Kane's watch chain when he was robbed by two ruffians on Monday evening. The man has not yet been identified, but some blood spots were on his feet when captured.

From information received by Mr. Assistant Commissioner Farman he, with a party consisting of 11 policemen went to a coolie lodging house in Tsimshing-ha and was proceeding to search the same when some of the occupants picked Mr. Kane through a door and he fell from a great height into the air below.

We are sorry to add that the highly respectable and well known detective received several painful injuries from the fall in addition to a number of bruises on his body.

Twenty-one of the vagabonds who were in the house at the time are now in custody; we wish the law in this colony could award to such wretches the punishment they deserve. Six of them were found to be old offenders and were each yesterday committed to prison for a month.
